Did you know there are thousands of women that are currently being treated for breast cancer?

Did you know there are thousands of women that are currently being treated for breast cancer, but are homeless, stressed and struggling to meet their day-to-day living expenses and losing their lives?

What if there were
"A Place Called LOVE"
for women going through breast cancer treatments
to live, at no cost
to them?

Would you support it?

The 100 Days | 100 People | $100 Challenge

Dear Supporter,

We are inviting you to be part of something bold, achievable, and deeply impactful.

The 100 Days Challenge is a collective call to action designed to move our mission forward in a powerful and personal way. The idea is simple, yet transformative:

In 100 days, commit to inviting 100 people to donate $100 each.

Together, this effort will help fund the pilot phase of A Place Called Love (APCL)—a home for healing, dignity, and inspired dreams for women undergoing breast cancer treatment while facing housing insecurity.

A Place Called Love is being built on the belief that healing requires more than medicine. It requires safety, stability, compassion, and community. Through this initiative, women will be supported in a nurturing environment where they can focus on healing, restoring their strength, and preparing to return to society with confidence and dignity.

This challenge is not about one large donor or one organization carrying the load. It's about collective impact—ordinary people doing something extraordinary by reaching into their own circles and inviting others to give at a meaningful, accessible level.

Why $100?

Because it's tangible.

Because it's doable.

Because when multiplied by commitment, it becomes life-changing.

By participating in the 100 Days Challenge, you are not only contributing financially—you are becoming an advocate, a connector, and a champion for women who need support at one of the most vulnerable moments of their lives.

Every person you invite becomes part of a larger story: a story of love in action, of community stepping forward, and of lives being uplifted through shared responsibility.

This is how movements are built.

This is how homes are opened.

This is how lives are changed.

Thank you for believing in the mission of A Place Called Love and for considering this powerful commitment. Together, over the next 100 days, we can turn compassion into action—and vision into reality.

With gratitude and purpose,

Missouri
